What is the future of this country? This is a grave and serious question, and as little as it may attract our attention or the little thought that is given to it, does not argue that it is not worthy of attention or that it is not a momentous one. The condition of the public mind, the political outlook, the instability of public opinion, the variable nature of thought, the deep-seated excitement of the people upon vital questions and the dangerous mutterings of discontent that come to us from all parts of the land all tend to create anxiety as to our future in the mind of anyone who has the interest of the country at heart. Perhaps at no period in the history of our Government, not excepting that period including our civil war, has the future seemed so uncertain or so shrouded in darkness. The beacon lights of the past fail to throw rays beyond a near tomorrow. Look abroad! Iams, political, religious and moral, seemed to have with feverish rapidity spread and taken hold of the people high and low, rich and poor, learned and unlearned, and he who is the most ultra in the advocacy of a particularism becomes a prophet and an almost worshipped law-giver among those following his tenets. Conservatism seems to have been buried in the rubbish of the past. The loud talker and boaster becomes the leader, the conservative thinker and wise counselor is spurned with contempt. Wisdom and statesmanship is at a discount, while folly and demagoguery ride in state. The man who counsels moderation is unheeded, while the people drink in ultraisms and fanaticism with avidity. Nothing seems to satisfy the cravings of the morbid mind appetite but extreme and fanatical teachings and doctrines. No man need go far from his own door to have the truth of this verified. A war, bloodless indeed, but as momentous in its issues and perhaps more serious in its consequences than our civil war is being waged in all the land. A war not with swords, nor of sections, a war fought in every village and city, age in every workshop, in every mart. Will it lead to bloodshed? is a question only to be answered by time. Its mutterings may be heard accompanying the ring of every stroke upon the anvil, the buzz of every spindle, the puff of every steam engine, and the low of the cattle in every barn yard. Discontent, deep and universal has spread like a pall over the whole land. Pent up, nursing its wrath, it is straining every nerve and square inch, as the steam presses outward in a boiler. This discontent, deep and universal as it is, is seeking for causes to wreak its vengeance upon. This war of discontent with the state of things is being waged. What is the cause? Where is the remedy? Must the Government go down or will the flag of truce and a treaty of peace save us from an end as a Republic. It is an unnecessary war between labor and capital. Ah! here is the trouble. A war waged upon the one side by the brawny arm of the laborer, upon the other by the powerful "almighty dollar." We have said it is unnecessary, this is true because if neither is aggressive nor intrenches upon the other no clash will come, for each has its sphere, each its groove, and it is only when one or the other intrudes upon the sphere of the other, in avarice or tyranny, that a collision occurs. For either to this encroachment is unnecessary. A look into our later history shows the encroaching party with us. The locus of the discontent also shows it. Capital is smiling and self-satisfied. The golden ring of their dollars is precious. Their coffers are full, with each dollar therein truly "worth its weight in gold." The bond that lies so cozily and neatly folded in the chest is equivalent to gold itself, and gathers annually its golden harvest—which brings luxury, ease and comfort in its train. Having been paid more than in full, it still lies twice its cost and still yielding its golden harvest. Whence sprung "this goose that lays the golden egg?" Read the acts of our National Legislature, numerous and pregnant, giving birth to and tenderly nursing the offspring. No chastisement is sent but act upon act increasing its value and to-day we behold the bonded debt of our Government nearly as great as originally, yet the creditors have been paid more than the face value of the debt which cost them little more than half the amount. From what is this harvest gathered? Labor is discontented and sorrowful, for from it has been and is still being gathered this immense treasure. The perspiration that rolls from the brow of the laborer, rolls this treasure into the laps of the capitalist. The toil of the workman while it brings a scanty reward to himself, yields a handsome income to the bondholder. Taxed heavily, labor pours into the coffers of the capitalist its hard earned treasure, and when it reaches that resting place "presto change" and we find it untaxed, unburdened and only used to supply the necessities and luxuries of the law-favored bondholder. In the same proportion that capital benefits the holder should it bear the burdens of government, but strange to say labor bears upon its shoulders the greater share of burden while capital invested in the bond is entirely exempt. Iniquitous legislation in favor of capital to the detriment of labor, legislation that strips labor of its dignity and proper reward, makes it the servant of its own production, for labor produces capital. Scarce money and hard times are the portion of the laboring class, which does not entirely consist of some seem to think, of rogues and fools. Should we wonder then at the discontent prevailing, should we be surprised that chafing under wrongs, that the people should be seeking for remedies, that they catch at wild theories and are willing to follow in the leadership of extremists and fanatics need be surprised, unless legislation placing capital in its proper sphere is quickly had that this discontent and chafing, will demonstrate into overt acts and that in the near future will break out into resistance to authority and involve the country in ruin. It will come unless the remedy is applied and labor is relieved of its burdens and its wrongs, and when it does come who can foretell the result? At this point the question comes to us with force, What is the future of this country? Will the legislation of the future be shaped as to right the many wrongs, will it disperse the cloud now hanging over the land, send the laborer to his work with a cheerful song in the place of the frown of discontent he wears. If so, then we have a glorious future. If not, then the veil drops over the scene. We believe that with the Democratic party in power the remedy will be found and applied, hence we urge every one for the sake of peace and prosperity in the future to awake and put on his armor and see that the party of the people is placed in power.

PERSONAL.

Jailer Slaton was in town last week. Prof. Arnold and Harris favored our sanctum with a visit last Saturday. We are under obligations to Mr. A. L. Newsum, of Allen, Tex., for late Texas papers. Judge Stuart passed through town Sunday en route for Hardinsburg, where his term of Circuit Court convened on Monday. Henry Hands, one of our composers, has a notice on his case, "Hands off copy and cases." The publisher gives him notice, "Hands on copy and cases," if you please. Mr. M. Hamman, while returning from the funeral of Mr. Greenwall's child, was thrown from the horse and had his right shoulder badly dislocated and his head fearfully gashed. Rev. I. R. Self, of Princeton, Ky., had his fine horse stolen on the night of the 5th instant. A gentleman at the hotel was relieved of $25 on the same night. Rev. J. L. Edgington has been reassigned to the Cloverport Station by the Louisville Conference and will stay with us another year. This is gratifying to all. He has won a place in the hearts of this people that any one might envy. The happiest event of our little city lately occurred on last Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. Isaac Miller. Mr. A. A. LaHeist, one of our intelligent and enterprising young men, led to the hymenal altar the beautiful and accomplished Miss Alice Miller, where the Rev. J. L. Edgington pronounced the twin one flesh. The hearty congratulations of the large group of friends assembled was then extended, and after partaking of the nicely prepared viands the happy pair left on the steamer upon a bridal tour.

Who will be the next? Frost last Saturday morning. Children are dying through the country with putrid sore throat. Preaching at the Methodist church on Elm street next Sunday at 11 a. m. and at night. Is there any truth in the rumor concerning a late magistrate of Hancock county? If true, he should be put in the penitentiary for life. Cloverport is selling more goods and at lower prices than any town in Kentucky of its size. "Competition is the life of trade," and the old adage is verified here.

Miller & Hovious's gelding is not the celebrated "Goodnight." Goodnight is not that kind of a horse. He may be made so in the future but is not now. Thursday the Hardinsburg Fair promises to be a very exciting day. The horse race four to start, is engaging the attention of race-men and is expected to be a lively tussle. We listened to the sentence of Judge Murray upon the two prisoners which go to the Sheriff, gets ready. To the Governor we introduce Charlie as the best officer in the State, and a number one Democrat of whom the old county of Ohio is justly proud. The sentence of the Judge was marked with the true feeling of a noble heart, and did credit to the head and heart of a just and humane Judge, who sympathized with the unfortunate condition of the prisoners. His advice to Mr. Webb produced no doubt a good impression, and we hope for the prisoner, will be heeded. Judge Murray and Attorney Hagerman leave for other districts.—Hardy Daily Herald.

The above is a sample of notices of the press being received by Judge Murray, throughout the district. He is making an enviable record as a Judge, and of his native health take pride in his success. Rev. J. L. Edgington—everybody knows and remembers with a big smile and a great deal of pleasure "brother Edgington," as everybody called him—is now editing the Brookings News, together with David H. Murray, Senator from Hancock. We our old straw hat to them both—able fraternal—Princeton Banner.

The thrilling report has reached us from Memphis, that now and then children desert their parents and parents their children; husbands even flee from their wives; but there has not been an instance known yet where a wife has deserted her husband during the terrors of the scourge. Men go about thinking of this, more profoundly impressed than by all that has ever been written of the fidelity of women.—Elizabethton News.

CLOVERPORT, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1878.

NO. 14.

Hardinsburg.

Two weddings last week. There is but little sickness about town. There will be a big crowd at the fair. The big race will come off on Friday, 25. Samuel Overstreet has moved to Litchfield. G. W. Beard and wife are visiting in Bardstown, Ky. Mrs. Welch has been quite sick for several weeks. We will soon have a big flouring mill, as good as there is in the county. Joseph R. Pullam, Magistrate-elect, has moved to Germantown, Ky. Beard & Beeler keep a full line of Gent's Furnishing Goods. Clait Beard has been very sick for the last week.

'Tis a fact that Beard & Beeler have most anything you want. Mrs. Lennin has just received a full line of Millinery Goods and Notions.

Beard & Beeler have the Cheapest Stock of Boots and Shoes in this market. Col. Alfred Allen is offering one hundred acres of good farming land for sale, cheap, lying near this place.

Beard & Beeler have the Fullest Assortment of Drugs in the place. Prescriptions filled at all hours.

There is some material around here now that will do to work into a revival or Murphy meeting.

Beard & Beeler have a full line of Pants, which they are offering at Very Low prices. The fair grounds are undergoing thorough repairs, and everybody that comes here next week can be accommodated.

Don't forget to call and see Mrs. Gregory when you want anything in the Millinery line.

Beard & Beeler have the Largest Stock of General Merchandise in the city.

Lannie Smith left last week for Louisville, to connect himself with one of the leading tinware houses of that city.

The town papers will please remember the duck pond in front of Beard & Beeler's Store.

Mrs. Lennin keeps a full line of Ladies' and Misses' Fine Shoes, with prices that defy competition.

This week go to Joseph McGary's, the Cheapest place in town, to get what you want in the Confectionery line for cash.

Mrs. W. H. Gregory is still in the Millinery business, and selling as Cheap as anyone.

Hawesville has challenged Hardinsburg for a game of base ball, to be played at Cloverport. May be they can be accommodated. We are bad.

Hardinsburg has contributed but little if anything to the yellow fever sufferers.

W. H. Gregory is still agent for the Singer Machine Co. Needles and Attachments for Machines, for sale by him.

A full line of Ready-made Clothing, New and of the Latest Styles, just received at Pullam & Gardner's.

Come and look at our Boots and Shoes. Every thing Cheaper than ever. If you want Furniture we will order it for you. Boots and Shoes a specialty. J. A. WITT & CO.

Mr. T. N. Vessels will have charge of the booths at the fair grounds during the fair. He will also have charge of the eating department and will furnish stock men board during the fair at reasonable rates. His table will be furnished with every thing the market affords. He goes to Louisville this week to purchase a full line of confectioneries, and the booths will be stocked with every thing.

Largest Stock of Woolen Goods in town at WITT & CO. We have never yet in all our travels, and we've been about a little—struck a town whose youngsters are so willing and eager to marry as in this one. The thing seems to be an epidemic. "Every body takes it." Within the last few weeks there has been several marriages here, seemingly to the great surprise of the most of us, for no body was looking for them. So it is; they will run along until after while it will be a hard for any body to tell where this business is going to stop.

Prints and Notions just received at WITT & CO.

Five Cassimeres in Pant's Patterns at Pullam & Gardner's, from $1.25 to $2.50 a yard.

A full Stock of Boots and Shoes—Misses fine Shoes, at Pullam & Gardner's.

Cloverport is aroused—yes, alarmed, over the result of a love affair which happened near there not long since. We are not, of course, acquainted with the parties to the transaction, and even if we were, we could not be so dogmatically cruel as to tell them. For we think and cough for them anyhow, when the public get wind of it, otherwise than by the assistance of the press. But the press proposes to deal with it gently, believing that it is altogether a serious matter, and having had some experience herein in the thing just one way and another, and that experience the result of the most atrocious and diabolical scheme ever set, planned or conceived by human ingenuity. But to go on with what we started out to say, the unfortunate parties to this love-making being both young and anxious for the coming of that happy hour when their hearts should be sealed as one, and when they could then start out upon the world's pleasures and enjoyments for better or for worse. Just before this all appearing moment of matrimony, a thing occurring, and now allow us to mention, the noble young man who was to do upon this eventful occasion; who prematurely brought it about, had, seemingly, forgotten one of a like nature before, and where, if reports be true, he was known to have figured very successfully. The law, of course, allows a man to take unto himself a companion, and if he is not satisfied, and complains of maltreatment (which nine out of ten get but they don't say so for fear the deed might be done) to seek another, after a due course of relief. Our forefathers have very wisely transmitted to us this bit of information which sustains our moral character and holds together the bonds of civil society. Furthermore, things would, indeed, come to a pretty pass if we were to permit a second Brigham Young in this country. Doubtless the young man unthoughtfully overlooked these several provisions and until the eve of his nuptial feast did his mind revert to it, and there he let the cat out of the bag. What was to be done? Nothing. Nothing could be done. The case was one similar to that of the Dutchman, and matters had to stand. He went away, however, in search of friendly advice. He needed consolation. He was low spirited. Who was to give him such information as he needed was an all-important question. And another thing, seemingly paramount to this, was the condition of his mind. He had to go. The young man was not far from being a madman. And, sure enough, when it reached her ears that there could be no wedding, young and fair and beautiful as she was, she threw herself prostrate upon a straw mattress that lay in one side of the room, and there from the effects of some narcotic tincture, her thoughts were wafted into the happy land of Kingdom-come, and she was unconscious for seven days and nights. Her friends gathered around her expecting every moment to find her lifeless. The young man was sent for but he would not and was as cold and indifferent as a statue in a marble-yard. Whether or not a first-class Bogardus hickory put in active operation somewhere in reach of his posterior developments would not have been sufficiently requisite to have moved him about this time to where "my love lies dreaming" is a point not clearly settled in our mind. As for the young lady gulping down a bottle of drugs because matters didn't terminate just as she thought they ought to, we attribute it to her lack of good sense, and suggest that if she meets with another one similar and nothing but drugs will relieve the complaint to try a bottle of Soothing Syrup in broken doses as it is recommended in chronic cases. Yet should this work even so effectively it will surely be resorted to as an adequate means of relief because a smothered wound will have infection only in death. Yes, verily; all experience proves not the contrary. Whether it has proven so in the case above mentioned we are not yet just prepared to say. Later advice will be given. In particular, when we hope to give the readers of this valuable and wide-spread journal a fuller and more perfect description of the matter spoken of herein, and if necessary to remodel it somewhat and thereby exhibit clearly all the fine points in the case so as there can possibly be no misunderstanding as to what we desire to say relative to the whole transaction; who the parties were and all about it one way and another, it being the only aim the correspondents have to benefit and exalt that portion of the human family whose eyes perchance may fall upon the limited space herein allotted him.

Mrs. Pullam & Gardner have a well-assorted Stock of Fall Goods, which they offer at very low Prices for Cash.

Out of all the stores in Breckenridge county we have yet the first time to see any thing that will compare with the mammoth establishment in Hardinsburg. It has been growing constantly for years, and with a trade that out rivals all other firms. It is now carrying the largest stocks of general merchandise ever brought to the place and with prices that fairly defy competition. The goods are brought directly from New York, which enables them to sell cheaper and at better figures than can be found elsewhere. We therefore advise the trading public to go and examine for themselves. This house is owned and run by T. M. Miller, and he is determined that no one shall undersell him or offer inducements that he cannot offer.

You can buy anything you want at Pullam & Gardner's for Cash. Call and see them without fail.

Last week we made mention of all the firms in this place and the different branches of business in which they are engaged. We think local advertising can be made profitable to the merchants here, as it may tend to induce trade from the surrounding country that is now going elsewhere. Our stocks are large and in keeping with the times, and this being the case there is certainly no reason why we should not enjoy a very liberal share of the patronage Cloverport just below us is now getting hundreds of dollars that rightly belong to us. She gets it by advertising; she gets it by active set of men who are always up and doing, while on the other hand we are to be patient in waiting for it to come to us.

A large stock of fall and winter overcoats and ladies' cloaks at all prices at WITT & CO'S.

Races. Races to be run Friday of the Fair. Half-mile dash for horses any age that have not been twice, $200 entrance 20 percent James H. Miller enters, colt, "Jim Hughes." J. T. Wheatley enters "Betie Claxton." Vessels & Hosson enters "Good Night." Ring open for entries.

Nat Holmes, col., on Friday last, was held in $50 bail, by Esquire, John W. Raitt, to appear at the next Criminal Court and answer the charge of carrying concealed a deadly weapon. It was a pistol.

Go to Frank Fraize and price his Ready-made Clothing of the highest quality and the best material, also his stock of Gent's Furnishing Goods, the finest and Cheapest in the Market.

The yellow fever still rages in Memphis, Vicksburg, New Orleans and other places in the South. The distress of the suffering and dying still continues unabated. Frank Fraize is still ready to receive and forward any contributions for their relief.

Frank Fraize has everything you want in the way of Dry Goods, Groceries and Notions, Calicoes, latest styles, and at your own Price. Domestic of every grade, light, heavy, good and Cheap.

The Louisville Exposition will be continued until the 26th instant. In addition to the many other attractions that have characterized this as the best Exposition ever held in Louisville, Col. Maginnis has arranged for the grandest Baby Show that has ever been held in the United States. Here will be an opportunity for the mother of that fine baby, living not a thousand miles from this office, to win a prize that is worth having. From appearances the last week of the Exposition will be the best.

Frank Fraize has an inexhaustible Stock of Hardware, consisting of Cutlery of every description, Saws, Axes, Drawing-knives, etc. Also Bells, Trace-chains, Log-chains, Bridles, Collars, Girths and everything you need in that line—all at your own price.

Strayed From my house, near Nell's Mill, about the 15th of August last, one red and white-spotted cow, two years old, slim, knee horns. Market with a red and white in the right ear. Any information given will be thankfully received and liberally rewarded. J. R. BOARD. Prince of Wales, Ky. 1015 13

Frank Fraize's Stock of Hosiery is perfectly splendid, and so Cheap.

The Original Cash Store.

Four and a half years ago Bowmer & Hambleton established the Cash System in Cloverport, and put prices down so low that merchants in adjoining towns and country stores could not compete with them in prices. The result of the above policy has been to double their sales and increase the general business of the town. They are receiving daily all kinds of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Notions, which will be sold at about what other merchants in this town and other towns pay for goods. The large quantities of goods they buy enable them to get better discounts off their bills than other merchants. Their stock is too large and varied to itemize. Call for most any article you want and you can get it AT BOWMER & HAMBLETON'S CHEAPER THAN ANY OTHER STORE. Call in and see the throngs of people buying goods at their counters daily and be convinced that they sell cheaper than other stores.

Frank Fraize has the largest and best selected stock of Boots and Shoes, and the cheapest in Western Kentucky.

Go to Dr. W. B. WHITE'S Star Drug Store for your Stationary and Envelopes, all of the latest Style and best quality. Cheap. Perfumery, Soaps and Florist's Extras, Cheap. Pipes, Cigars, Tobacco for chewing and smoking, of the finest quality. Cigars the best in the Market. Fresh, Pure Drugs and Medicines. Paints and Oil of all kinds—Cheap. Prescriptions carefully compounded, day and night.

Frank Fraize has the largest and finest assortment of Notions to be found anywhere.

J. L. Grossenback, a talented young physician of Maxville, O., committed suicide on the 14th by taking prussic acid. He directed that his body be placed by Miss Dora King, who died six weeks before, and to whom he was engaged to be married.—Exchange.

Frank Fraize's stock of Hats and Caps can't be surpassed in quantity, quality or Price.

Joseph Daugherty, superintendent of the Honeywell Coal mines in Grayson county, had his back broken by falling late in one of the rooms. Wheeler Castillo went down into the mine to examine it, and was overcome by foul air. A gentleman by the name of Myers attempted to rescue him, and was also overcome; before assistance could reach them they both died.—Bz.
